Critical Need for Blood, Visit Stanford Blood Center

Due to a sudden shortage of blood types O-Negative, AB-Negative and B-Negative Bay Area residents are being asked to donate at Stanford Blood Center as soon as possible this week to ensure local patient needs are met. Liver transplant surgery, pediatric heart surgery and pediatric leukemia treatments are examples of recent patient usages. This, combined with fewer blood donations this time of year, has created a perfect storm that has led to a severe blood shortage. It is vital that the blood inventory be replenished to maintain a steady supply at all times.
